Hi Jenna,

Terry asked me to define some of the terms I used in my recent CAG comments

ADUs are accessory dwelling units, a second housing unit on an existing lot.

Parking Requirements is where the county requires each development to have x number of parking spaces.

Complete streets include a sidewalk, bike lane and maybe a safety island in the middle.

In the transportation sector, super-users are people that drive much more than most people and maybe can't afford an electric car, eg contractors. <https://coltura.org/gasoline-superusers-2-report/>

A micro-mobility hub could be in a community center, eg Fourth Plains Commons where people can access bikes and scooters. They have one in Port Townsend and in the Tri-cities area.

I think that if, for example, the boiler system at Hudson's Bay HS needed an overhaul, they'd need a permit.

Regarding land needed for solar, I'd start with brownfields, parking lots and large buildings. Also, BPA right of ways.
