I support FOCC's requested changes to the draft goals and policies. Logging Dabbler is an unconscionable act. I believe that logging this critical public land would have devastating environmental, economic, and recreational consequences for our community and future generations.

Dabbler Forest is a vital part of Clark County's ecosystem, providing crucial wildlife habitat, carbon sequestration, and watershed protection. Resource extraction would permanently degrade these essential functions, threatening biodiversity and exacerbating climate change impacts. At a time when Washington State has committed to preserving its forests for carbon storage and ecological health, divesting public land for short-term financial gain is a step in the wrong direction.
