Good morning Brinn,

I am writing to follow-up on the below thread.

Clark County recently published a draft of the Climate Element proposed to be added to the county's comprehensive plan. You can access this document and an associated appendix at the following links:

- Draft Chapter 14 – Climate Element
- Draft Appendix I – Climate Element Support Documentation

Please let me know if you have any questions or comments.

The county's current comprehensive plan schedule is for County Council adoption scheduled for early June 2026.

Regards,
Jenna

Good morning!

I apologize for the quite late response. I will read through the materials that have been created so far. My job is the cultural resources and historic preservation, so I can't exactly speak to the tribal DNR or government side of things, but I can read through and review any things that might relate to or have effect on cultural resources.

Thank you!

Dear Chair Klatush,

We are writing regarding an update on a climate change project taking place in Clark County, WA. We invite the Confederated Tribes of the Chehalis to consult on the project if of interest.

Enclosed please find a letter with more details from Clark County Manager Kathleen Otto.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,
Jenna Kay
